

List of Typology research reports relating to the Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing

Purpose: The typologies reports on money laundering (ML) and terrorist financing (TF) methods can assist all AML/CFT stakeholders to better understand the nature of existing and emerging ML and TF threats and pursue effective strategies to address those threats. The Typology research reports are given from the publicly available resources of Financial Action Task Force (FATF) and FATF-style regional bodies (FSRBs). In these documents are given the samples of ML and TF methods and trends, explanation of measures on combating ML and TF and general description of typologies and case studies. These samples of typology reports will assist financial institutions and non-financial businesses and professions in identifying, assessing, and understanding ML and TF risks that they are exposed to as well as to detect and combat ML and TF.

Considering that AFSA does not yet have its practical samples of ML/TF typology reports at this stage, it is recommended to use the samples of typology research reports indicated in the table below.

Attention: In the typology research reports list are given all publicly available examples of possible schemes of the Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing as the methods and trends used to launder proceeds of criminal activities and finance illicit activities which are in constant evolution and considering that the international financial sector implements the FATF standards, criminals can find alternative channels.
